

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

A keyboard with functions of a translator, essentially comprised of a microprocessor containing translation software being provided in the keyboard, the microprocessor being connected to an LCD; existing keys on the keyboard and additional keys; words pending translation being entered for those translation software to display the translation results on the LCD; and the microprocessor being also connected to a speaker and a memory expansion slot for delivering the pronunciation of the translated word allowing external connection to the memory to enhance practical value of the keyboard.